

Leadership, Consensus, and Tradition Diagram

Many American Indian tribes have a rich history of leadership and governance.

This governance is tempered by three interrelated aspects:
adaptable leadership, consensus in decision-making and traditional principles.

